Random Number Generator Random number generators are an essential part of slot machines. Slots are programmed with a set of possible outcomes, and each time you pull the lever or hit the button, a random number is generated. This number is then compared to the programmed outcomes to determine if you win or lose. A machine with many rewards is a highly volatile one because a player has to wait longer between wins but when they come they are big. Slot machines are regulated by state gaming commissions. Each machine has a return to player (RTP) percentage, which is the average amount of money that a player can expect to win back over the long term. RTP is usually between 85% and 98%. Slot machines are also programmed with different volatility levels, which determine how often a player can expect to win and how big the wins are. High volatility machines have fewer wins but larger payouts, while low volatility machines have more frequent wins but smaller payouts.
