Early years [edit]

With the growth of football in the 1920s, Atalanta needed a new t;

stadium with considerably larger capacity than its previous grounds.[7] The new stadium was constructed on Viale Margherita (now Viale Giulio Cesare),[8] repl acing a hippodrome that once occupied the site.[9][10] Construction of the new stadium took one year; it opened in 1928 and cost 3.5 million lire.[7] The s tadium was named after fascist Mario Brumana; this was common naming practice in fascist Ital y.[9][7] The Brumana stadium was much larger than the Clementina field, having a se ated capacity of 12,000 spectators in two tribune (side stands) and a larger field measuring 110 by 70 metres (360 by 230 ft);[11] it also featured a running track, as it was planned to form part of a larger complex. On 1 November 1928, Atalanta played its firs t unofficial match at the stadium (a 2 victory against Triestina): the stadium wa
